"Collaborating for secured ownership"

Land registry and cadaster agencies provide services and information of great importance to citizens and the public administration. How can e-governance be developed in a way that gives the individual land owner better service and gives the administration as a whole conditions to serve society more efficiently?

The workshop will address the challenge of developing cooperation between various agencies and technical systems, among other issues.

The workshop will be held in English.

During the conference will be a small exhibition in which the Working Party on Land Administration (WPLA), European Land Registry Authority (ELRA) and European Land Information Service (EULIS) will present their activities. Lantmäteriet will present its digital archive and an application with real estate information, which is Sweden's contribution to EULIS.
