

CONTENTS

	Page
Preface	v
CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS	vii
Chapters
I. FRAMEWORK FOR THE HOUSING SECTOR	1
A. Background: social and economic transformation	1
B. History of transition: changes in the housing sector since 1991	7
C. National and local housing policy	14
II. EXISTING HOUSING STOCK AND NEW HOUSING CONSTRUCTION	17
Introduction	17
A. Housing stock and recent performance	17
B. Consumption and quality of housing services	21
C. Construction and property sector	26
D. The real-estate market	29
III. INSTITUTIONAL FRAMEWORK	35
Introduction	35
A. National institutions	37
B. Regional and municipal structure	41
C. Private-sector institutions	45
D. Private homeowners' organizational structure	46
IV. LEGAL FRAMEWORK	49
A. General framework legislation for housing	49
B. Land and real-estate development	51
C. Privatization of State-owned housing	53
D. Housing management and maintenance	54
E. Legislation regulating the financial aspects of the housing sector	55
F. Land use and building regulations; development control	56
V. FINANCIAL FRAMEWORK	59
Introduction	59
A. Housing investment in the macroeconomic context	60
B. Financing new housing construction	62
C. Purchasing power and housing expenditure patterns	66
D. Housing subsidies and taxes	70
E. Mortgage-lending system	72
F. Financing maintenance and reconstruction	75

LIST OF TABLES

1. Population
2. Main macroeconomic indicators
3. Basic components of household income and expenditures, 1997
4. Number of people on waiting lists for housing
5. Monthly tariffs of principal housing services and level of production-cost recovery
6. Housing stock privatization and creation of private homeowners' associations
7. Trends in the average apartment price and total value of dwellings sold
8. Housing stock of the Republic of Moldova
9. Dynamics of the national housing stock, 1999
10. Urban-rural composition of the housing stock
11. Qualitative composition of spaces in the housing stock
12. Comparison of apartment block construction in Eastern Europe
13. Housing consumption
14. Amenities and infrastructure
15. Administrative units
16. Housing investment
17. Sources of funding for housing construction, 1970-2000
18. Use of companies' net earnings
19. New housing construction according to type of developer
20. Expected forms of payment for housing
21. Privatization revenue
22. Monthly wages
23. Breakdown of disposable income
24. Value of privatized housing stock
25. Breakdown of household consumption expenditure

LIST OF FIGURES

- I. Map of the Republic of Moldova
- II. Distribution of disposable income by quintiles, 1997
- III. Structure of overall consumption expenditures
- IV. Structure of housing expenditures
- V. Housing amenities, 1997
- VI. Housing quantity
- VII. Slowdown in housing construction
- VIII. Number of completed dwellings
- IX. Distribution of dwellings according to the number of rooms
- X. Total space per inhabitant
- XI. Number of dwellings per 1000 inhabitants, in transition countries
- XII. Number of dwellings per 1000 inhabitants
- XIII. Average turnover per contractor, 2000
- XIV. Average price per square metre, 2000
- XV. Total auctions for the right to lease land, 1997-1999
- XVI. Overall distribution of auctions to buy land, 1997-1999
- XVII. Institutional structure of the public sector
- XVIII. Organizational structure of the Ministry of Environment, Construction and Territorial Development, 2001
- XIX. Administrative map of the Republic of Moldova
- XX. Main private-sector institutional structures influencing the housing sector
- XXI. Deposits with commercial banks, 1997-1999
- XXII. Deposits in foreign currency as a percentage of total deposits, 1994-1999