Abstract

In September 2016, Statistics Netherlands launched its Center for Big Data Statistics CBDS. This Center aims at strengthening big data-related activities in the office by bringing together the people involved across all departments. At the same time, an extensive, and still growing, partner network was established based on the philosophy that big data requires collaboration on many levels. The presentation focuses on the important role of data acquisition at CBDS. Some examples will be shown that indicate a number of aspects that come into play.
