Road Safety Performance Review (RSPR) - Secretariat of the UN Secretary General's Special Envoy for Road Safety

Project phases and Work Plan

Phase I: Preparatory visit - The project will start with preparatory visits of an initial review team to two African countries selected by ECA (one mission per country) including a one-day policy dialogue to agree on the objectives, outline and timeline of the RSPR Report with national authorities and other road safety stakeholders. During the mission, a framework and RSPR Methodology is presented by ECA, based on the methodology developed by ECE. This three-day preparatory mission is expected to result in the conclusion of an agreement between the respective Regional Commission and government where specific areas to be reviewed are defined and agreed upon.

Phase II: Fact-Finding Mission and Draft RSPR Report Production - Following the preparatory missions, a substantive fact-finding team (comprising relevant UN Commission staff from UNECE and ECA, the international consultant, national consultants, and international experts) will undertake in-depth fact-finding missions in each of the target countries to meet and interview national authorities and other road safety stakeholders. Consultants and fact-finding team will prepare draft country RSPR Report which will be reviewed by relevant UN Commission staff from UNECE and ECA. Chapters of the RSPR report will be assigned to a member of the fact-finding mission team, who will draft the content and obtain needed data through contact with a direct government focal point. The international consultant assembles the chapters and finalizes the draft.

Phase III: Government feedback and Expert Review - The fact-finding teams will present the main findings of the relevant country RSPR Report with recommendations on actions to be taken during the one-day policy dialogue seminar in each country. This will be a main opportunity for feedback by the national government and stakeholders as well as review by external experts (either in-person or electronically) - to be identified and proposed during phase I and II). Experts may also learn from the country specific experience.

Phase IV: Recommendations & RSPR Report Publication - Following the policy dialogue seminars, in collaboration with the national governments, substantive review teams will finalize the RSPR Reports incorporating feedback from the expert review process. Translation of the final reports into the national language and publish in English and the national language will follow.

Phase V: Follow up - Finally, follow up capacity-building national workshop(s) will be organized. The follow up capacity-building national workshop(s) would take place over two days and present the finalized RSPR Report as well as provide training on the relevant priority areas identified through the Road Safety Performance Review.
