

United States Technical Assistance Programs in the Energy Sector

Supporting our friends and allies in the Energy Transition

Presentation by the Commercial Law Development
Program, Office of General Counsel, U.S. Department of Commerce

U.S. Assistance Supports U.S. Global Energy Priorities:

- Energy Security
- Energy Resilience
- Energy Transition
- Decarbonization
- Economic Prosperity
- Human Rights
- Democracy
- Rule of Law
- And many more

Clean and secure energy is the backbone of prosperous, democratic societies

Multiple U.S. Agencies work together to advance the Energy Transition, and many provide international technical assistance to governments and energy sectors worldwide

... And more!

In the Energy sphere, some leading programs:

- USAID: Energy Security programs worldwide
- Department of Interior – International Technical Assistance Program:
 - Mining, oil & gas best practices
 - Natural disasters
 - Environmental governance
 - Wildlife & habitat management
- Environmental Protection Agency:
 - Methane reduction
 - Lead & mercury elimination
 - Marine environment management
 - Electronic waste

- Financial support:
 - Development Finance Corporation
 - U.S. Trade & Development Administration
 - Export-Import Bank
- Department of Energy:
 - Nuclear
 - Cybersecurity for energy infrastructure
 - Energy resilience
 - Bi- and multilateral energy cooperation initiatives
 - Clean energy technology cooperation
 - Clean energy innovation

U.S. Department of Commerce: Commercial Law Development Program

- Energy Transition Team:
 - Overall energy transition strategy
 - Methane reduction
 - Minerals and critical supply chains
 - Green finance
 - Renewables development
 - Grid stability and regulation
 - Energy capacity building
 - Attracting investment
 - Full power sector support
 - Model contracts
 - Community engagement
 - And much, much more

