Digital technologies in the census

Features of the 2020 census round in the CIS countries

The 2020 round in the CIS region can be characterized as a turning point in terms of pre-existing traditional practices:

- using the Internet as an opportunity for the population to take part in the census and fill out census forms independently
- the census model has become more complex - the traditional method was combined with the use of administrative and population registers data
- almost universal rejection of paper census forms and active use of tablets for surveying the population and entering information
- using interviewers' personal phones with a pre-installed mobile application as a technical means of recording respondents' answers
