UK MISSION TO ASEAN

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHY

Zoe is an engineer by training. After 10 years manufacturing hazardous chemicals and pharmaceuticals she moved into the UK civil service in the Department for Trade and Industry. After working at the interface between business and government on regulation, innovation and health, she specialised in good regulatory systems, building capacity and delivering burden reduction programmes.

In 2014 she started up a PPP supporting innovative healthcare businesses developing in the south-east of England. She then found an opportunity to pursue her passion for development. Since 2015, she has been supporting livelihoods, health and business environment programmes in the ASEAN region.

She is currently based in Jakarta as the Senior Regulatory Reform Attaché to UK Mission to ASEAN, managing regional delivery of the Regulatory Reform pillar within the UK-ASEAN Economic Integration Program. This four-year initiative aims to foster economic growth across the region by tackling development barriers within ASEAN member states and the broader ASEAN Economic Community.
